CANDIDATES WITH PUSH ARE PILING UP VOTES

These are the days that every live candidate is busy hunting subscription in every nook and corner, and most of them are meeting with fair success. So far the race has been very even and it is a great question in the mind of the contest manager who the winners in this great campaign will be. The interest in the contest is becoming more intense each day, and no doubt every promise made to you by your friends earlier in the campaign will be fulfilled now. Explain to everyone how short the time is getting and that you are very anxious to get their subscriptions in to the office. Tell them you really haven't the time to call on them again as you will need every moment to solicit in new fields before some of your competitors get ahead of you. We are urging action now and you will thank us later on.

Don't leave a stone unturned. Get votes to the contest office by the 12th of March. You may depend upon it that your most dangerous competitor will not be so. You may be equally certain that if you don't do everything in your power you will find others going ahead of you.

It is all well and good to say that you are going to do this and do that, but in competition of this nature, there is nothing else in life, results are what count, and deeds and actions count greater than words. One single subscription may mean victory or defeat. Do not overlook the announcement concerning the $40 in gold to be given away March 7th, 1914, for the largest number of subscriptions totaling the largest number of months turned in this week. There is a twenty dollar gold piece for each district. Twenty dollars is a fairly good salary from now until Saturday night. Get to work and stay at work until the twenty dollars is yours. The gold is hunting up owner.

RELICS OF AARON BUR.

Famous Richmond Hill House in New York is Being Torn Away.
New York, March 2.—Remnants of Aaron Burr's famous Richmond Hill house are being recovered by wreckers who are tearing down some ancient buildings on the East Side of Varick street in order to widen that thoroughfare.

The old Burr place in its latter years was used as a theatre and at one time rose to the dignity of an opera house. Years ago it passed to the use of a stable. It is this structure that is now being torn down, revealing fresco work which is said to have formed a part of the old theatre decoration.

An old resident of the vicinity exhibits a play bill of the old theatre which was known as Miss Nelson's theatre, in 1856.

Pittsburg, March 2.—William St. Paul Jasper, an negro, temporarily detained in the office of the county jail here while friends adjusted a complaint against him today told Warden Edward Lewis that a wonderful diamond watch for he carried had once been the property of Aaron Burr.

His ancestor, said Jasper, had been Burr's personal servant and just before Burr faced Alexander Hamilton in their historic duel he gave the servant the jewel which Jasper found. He said, passing it down to his descendants and it finally came to Jasper, who is a veteran of the civil war and on the pension roll for wounds received in battle.

The Forty Year Test.

An article must have exceptional merit to survive a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1875. From its small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has obtained a world wide reputation. It will do nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only gives relief, it cures. For sale by Evans' Pharmacy. (Adv.)

Financial and Commercial

New York Cotton

New York, March 2.—The usual cable advices were received today, but otherwise the New York cotton market was practically isolated as a result of storm conditions, and trading was nearly at a standstill. The opening was steady, four higher on May 4, and 2 lower on May, with other months a point higher. Liverpool was about as due, but there were some foreign selling orders around the local ring, while there also appeared to be some scattering local liquidation under which active months sold 2 to 5 points net lower.

March remained quiet and steady, notwithstanding a few additional notices, and sold about 40 points over May. The close was steady, 5 higher on April, but generally 1 to 5 net lower.

Spot cotton: Middling, 13.05; no sales. Cotton futures closed steady.

	Open	Close
March	12.24	12.20
May	11.84	11.80
July	11.83	11.80

New Orleans Cotton

New Orleans, March 2.—With communication with other markets cut off by the storm, the local cotton market today made little show of life. Prices had a tendency to sag under the dullness, and closed at a net loss of 6 to 8 points. Weather conditions over the cotton region were favorable and led to more or less selling in the house that pressure in new crop preparations would result in a quiet and inclined to take the short side, but bought covers on small recessions which steadied the market and brought about several partial recoveries.

The large amount of cotton on ship-board at ports in this country caused much bullish comment and led to predictions of heavy March exports. At New Orleans and Galveston about 40,000 bales were cleared for export during the day. This was the main bullish influence.

Spot cotton steady, unchanged. Middling 12. Sales on the spot, 980; to arrive 200.

Cotton futures closed: March, 12.43; May, 12.40; July, 12.42; Aug. 11.98; Oct. 11.52; Dec. 11.62.

Liverpool Cotton

Liverpool, March 2.—Spot easy; middling, 7.04. Sales, 8,000; receipts, 18,000. Futures, quiet 1-2 to 1-2 lower than Saturday.

Cotton Seed Oil

New York, March 2.—Crippled wire conditions and consequent lack of outside order resulted in a quiet and narrow market for cotton seed oil. March 7.12; May, 7.28; July, 7.47; Aug. 7.56; Sept. 7.58; Oct. 6.75; 1.25. Prime safflower yellow, 7.05; summer white, 7.25. Sales, 2,800.

Cotton Goods

New York, March 2.—Raw silk ruled firm today. Cotton goods were steady. Yarns were easy. No color party shown for fall indicated wider and darker shades.

Chicago, March 2.—Crop damage reports came freely today and as a result the market closed steady. Corn made a net gain of 1-8 to 1-4 a 3-8 and oats of a sixteenth to 1-8c. In provision the finish varied from a shade down to a line of 1-2. Wheat closed steady.

Stocks and Bonds

New York, N. Y., March 2.—Activities in the financial market were largely curtailed today by the storm, which kept brokers from the exchange and customers from the commission houses. Delay in the mails and interruption of telegraph communication of all houses reduced outside business to a minimum. The volume of trading was the smallest of the year.

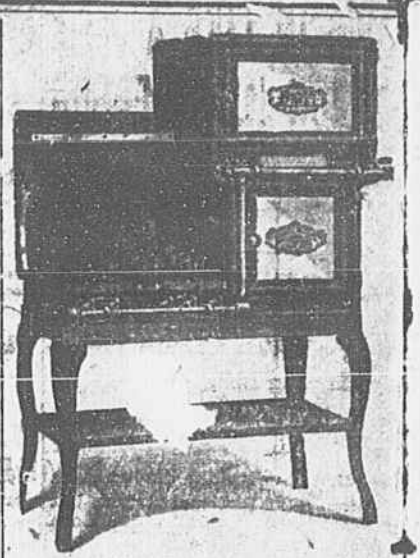

The market sagged, but the decline was due to the pressure than to lack of business. London sent over a range of prices and these caused selling orders of about 15,000 shares. This was about the only positive influence on the home market, and was mainly responsible for the day's movement.

The decline of small proportions, only a handful of the standard shares falling a point or more.

Traders favored the short side, believing that the technical position had been weakened by the driving in of the shorts last week. The unfavorable bank statement of Saturday and additional railroad exports for January, showing large decreases in earnings, also affected the list adversely. New York Central's January net fall off $3,554,000. Reports of the growing dullness in the copper market found corroboration, so far as concerns the foreign situation, in the increase in supplies shown in the fortnightly statistics.

United States express was one of few stocks to develop strength. It rose 6 points.

Bond market irregular. Sales 1,745,000.

You will be doing yourself a good turn by installing a GAS RANGE. We sell them under the strongest guarantee.

Easy terms—$2 down and $2 per month.

Uncle Dave's Letter.

"A Human Ruin." Any ruin is sad; a human ruin is saddest of all. Whoever or whatever battling bravely until engulfed by utter ruin moves our profoundest sympathy.

plant, scorched beyond endurance by summer heats and slowly yielding to the feeble life, touches our sympathy as if it were a sentient thing. The "drowned ship" struggling in tumultuous billows or braving against rocky shores, whose staunch timbers and strong planks maintain to the last the ineffectual struggle with wind and wave, seems to us to be animated by a human spirit, and its destruction calls out a sorrow as if it were a human being, with a life and strength of will. The consumptive person, in whose the citadel of life has been taken by insidious disease, and whose strength will matches itself against death, and whose fading color calls out a sympathy in its intensity—a sympathy intensified by our yearning desire to aid the sufferer in the unequal struggle, and our utter inability to give effectual help. Such wreck of health—such a wreck of womanly beauty or manly strength—moves us to grief and sadness with tears; but deeper, darker, more profoundly miseries and utterly desolate is the spectacle of a strong man, yielding to the mastery of drink—the gradual loss of self-respect, the decay of the moral sentiments, the growing paralysis of the will, until at last, utterly indifferent or defiantly reckless, he staggers through the dark door of death, with disgrace behind him and retribution before.

Not with one wild leap does any man go down this fearful abyss of sin and shame. The end is reached only after innumerable resolutions have been made and broken, and a retreat is taken, which the victim makes many a brave effort to withstand, the demon on who is pushing him on, and when at last the will to resist, or the ability to comprehend his disgrace, he sinks into utter and irremediable wretchedness, and drifts almost unconsciously to his doom. It is the saddest sight in the whole universe of God.

President Wilson recently said that no government exists in Mexico that is true. The merits of the rival claimants are unimportant. It is the total absence of law and order that is decisive. Every nation ultimately is held responsible for the power and disposition to exercise control and administer justice. Respect for the inviolability of its territory is based upon this. The absence of efficient and responsible government removes every ground for objection. When such conditions remain unchecked the entrance of a foreign military force is bound to follow. Inasmuch as Mexico is a neighbor, it is imperative that the United States should be better than that of the United States.
